FREELAND SEMINARY.

Freeland Seminary,

ESTABLISHED MDCCXLVIII,

BY

Rev. Abraham Hunsicker.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS:

“Freeland,” Montgomery County, Pa.

FREELAND SEMINARY.

This Institution was established in 1848, with the view of meeting the increasing demand for educational facilities in this section of Pennsylvania. Its organization and system of instruction are designed to adapt it to the varied wants of all—affording to each the selection of such a course of study as his peculiar aptitudes and destined pursuits in life may indicate.

Determined to make the establishment equal to the very best in our country, the proprietor projected everything on a liberal scale, and has spared no expense in completing his arrangements in the most perfect manner, believing a discerning public would not fail to appreciate his endeavors to render the school deserving of a liberal patronage.

That this confidence was not misplaced, the extraordinary success of the Institution during the fifteen years it has been in operation affords the most gratifying evidence. The literary exercises were commenced on the 7th of November, 1848, with four pupils only; yet so rapidly has the school risen in public estimation, that it has already been found necessary to make considerable additions to the accommodations in order to keep pace with the increasing demand for admission.

A large wing, with all the modern improvements, capable of accommodating conveniently about fifty additional students, has been added to the establishment.

As an evidence of the prosperity of the school, it is but necessary to state that about sixteen hundred young men and boys have been in attendance as students, since its organization.

LOCATION, MEANS OF ACCESS, &c.

The Institution is located in the beautiful village of "Freeland," near Perkiomen Bridge, on the Norristown and Reading Turnpike, in Upper Providence Township, Montgomery County, Pa., twenty-four miles North-west of Philadelphia, and eight miles from Norristown.

It is easy of access from every quarter, having communication with the Perkiomen Valley by Stages; with Philadelphia and Norristown by Railroad and two daily Stages; with the interior of the State by the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, via Philadelphia, or from Downingtown, a point on the road, direct to Norristown; with the districts of country opened by the Lebanon Valley, the Catawissa and Port Clinton, and the East Pennsylvania Railroads, converging at Reading, thence by the Reading Railroad to the Royersford Station, several miles west of the Seminary, whence students are brought to the school by private conveyance; with the country along the North Pennsylvania Railroad to Gwynedd Station, thence by Stage to Norristown.

The Seminary is situated within half a mile of the "Pennsylvania Female College." Parents or Guardians having sons or wards to educate, thus have the opportunity of sending them where they can enjoy each others society while pursuing their studies.

HEALTHFULNESS.

The Healthfulness of the place may be inferred from the remarkable fact, that although the School has been in operation fifteen years, during which time upwards of sixteen hundred different pupils have been in attendance, but few cases of serious sickness have occurred, and only one death in the School.

The surrounding country is fertile and healthy, abounding in picturesque scenery, and inhabited by a population proverbial for their sobriety, intelligence, and high tone of morality; and parents who place their sons here, can feel assured of their being exposed to none of those allurements to dissipation and vice that beset youth in our large towns and cities.

BUILDINGS, GROUNDS, &c.

The Seminary edifice, now improved by a large wing, or projection, added to the north end of the building, is built of stone, four stories high, and surrounded by a handsome railing and eupola, and occupies a beautiful eminence, commanding a delightful and extensive prospect of the surrounding country, interspersed with farms, villages, and rich natural scenery.

The adjoining grounds, comprising some ten acres, beautifully diversified with lawns, shrubbery and native oaks, are laid out with reference both to utility and ornament, affording ample play grounds for healthful exercise.

THE INTERNAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The internal arrangements of the establishment are complete, and admirably adapted to their appropriate purposes: the refectory, dormitories, study halls, class rooms and other apartments, being spacious, airy, and well provided with every requisite for the health, comfort and convenience of the student.

The domestic department will at all times be under the immediate supervision of the Principal, who, with his assistants, will board with the students and sit at the common table, exercising by their constant presence and parental intercourse, a salutary influence upon the manners, habits and tastes of their pupils, and giving to the household, as far as possible, the character of a well ordered Christian family.

The establishment is plentifully supplied with pure water.

G O V E R N M E N T.

The government is strictly parental, uniting mildness with decision. While a faithful discharge of duty, and a ready obedience to wholesome regulations will be insisted on, the officers will study to win the confidence of their pupils by habits of kind and familiar intercourse, endeavoring to influence them by an appeal to the better principles of the heart, rather than the fear of punishment. Where this is found to fail, the student will be returned to his parents, without disgrace, if possible, with the hope that, under other influence, he may yet form a character for usefulness.

To avoid danger and annoyance to the school, from idle and vicious associates, all who enter will be expected to bring testimonials of industrious habits and good moral character.

MORAL CULTURE.

The religious character of the Institution is non-sectarian. Believing that no influence should exist in school that in any way tends to bias the religious sentiments of the pupil, the officers claim only to inculcate principles that shall lead their students to recognize the obligations of morality and religion as laid down in the New Testament; expecting, however, each pupil to attend to public worship on the Sabbath, but at such places as the parent or guardian may designate. Portions of the Scripture are read each day at the opening of the school.

A handsome church nearly opposite the Seminary, is occupied in common by the various religious denominations in the neighborhood. Besides which, the German Reformed, Lutheran, Baptist, Methodist, Evangelical, Episcopalian, Mennonite and Friends' Societies have each a church within three-quarters of an hour's walk from the Seminary.

SCHOLARSHIP, DEPORTMENT, &c.

An accurate record is kept of the merits and demerits of each student in scholarship, general deportment, &c.; an abstract of which will be forwarded quarterly to his parent or guardian, thus keeping them advised of the standing and progress of their sons and wards, and securing their co-operation in giving efficiency to a mild system of discipline.

ATTENDANCE, REGULARITY, &c.

A punctual attendance to every exercise of the Seminary is required; and no student is expected to absent himself from such exercise, or to leave the place without permission.

Parents are requested not to intercept the application of their sons by unnecessarily allowing them to return home during the session; but when granting them permission to do so, let it be with the knowledge of the Principal, as pupils frequently make excuses to go home, because they are required to be industrious. Balls, parties, or places of amusement can only be attended by students from their respective homes.

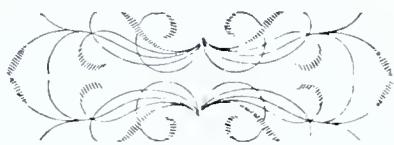

THE DEPARTMENT OF INSTRUCTION

Will be supplied with every means for imparting a thorough and liberal course in all the branches of an English, Classical, and Scientific education: affording to young gentlemen an opportunity for prosecuting their studies to any desirable extent, under auspices not less favorable, it is believed, than those enjoyed at most of our Colleges, yet at much less expense.

None will be employed in the business of teaching but gentlemen of the highest literary attainments, combining experience with acknowledged skill in the profession.

LECTURES.

Lectures will be given before the School by members of the Board of Instruction, on the subjects of Moral, Political and Natural Science, Criticism, General History, Theory and Practice of Teaching, Habits, Deportment, General, Etiquette, &c.

VI.

Music.

The department of music embraces instruction on the Piano Forte, Melodeon and Violin, by a gentleman of eminent musical attainments, and as a performer and composer, unequalled in this country.

Vocal music is taught both theoretically and practically, and as an exercise, conduces alike to the promotion of good reading and speaking, as it does to harmonize by its influence the feelings, and subdue rougher natures.

NORMAL DEPARTMENT.

Normal Schools are now rightly considered among the necessary and permanent institutions of the day. Teaching is rising to the level of a profession, and the teacher to be useful and honored in the profession, it is presumed will avail himself of every means to become so. The "school master," with the "empiric," and the "pettifogger," are gradually making room for the well qualified and skillful in these professions.

To afford young men an opportunity of fitting themselves for teachers in our Public or High Schools, a Teachers' Course has been added. This course contemplates not only the complete mastery of the branches required to be taught in our schools, but also a knowledge of the Science of Teaching, with the best and most approved methods of imparting instructions. A Teachers' Class is organized each term, and such as are found competent to take charge of schools, are furnished with certificates of qualification.

School Boards and others applying here for Teachers may rest assured that none will be recommended who have not passed a thorough examination in all the branches required to be taught.

It is to be hoped and confidently expected that those who desire Teachers better qualified, and a higher standard of instruction in our Schools generally, will encourage us in the introduction of this new Department to our School, by sending forward many to receive the benefits of our Normal Course. The constantly rising scale of qualification now insisted on by our Public School Officers, and the increased demand for better Teachers, render it absolutely necessary that the candidate for the responsible office of Teacher should at once apply himself vigorously to the work of preparation.

Its object is to afford to its members an opportunity to cultivate the art of extemporaneous speaking, and composition or essay writing. It aims especially at the improvement of its members in parliamentary usages, and is purely literary.

The regular meetings of this Degree are held on Friday evening of each week in a large commodious hall used exclusively for this purpose.

LIBRARY, READING ROOM, &c.

A fine Library, selected with great care, expressly for the Institution, furnishes ample means for an extensive course of reading.

A large Reading Room is provided for the special accommodation of the students, to which they may repair in the intervals of School.

A Cabinet of Minerals and Curiosities is forming, to which additions will be made from time to time, as means and circumstances permit. Specimens of Minerals, &c., are respectfully solicited from the friends of education, and will be thankfully received.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Pupils from a distance are expected to board in the Seminary. A limited number, however, can be accommodated at the Boarding House of Mrs. Hannah Hunsicker, near by, with rooms to study in—two in a room—with one bed, by paying an additional charge of $2.50 per term, besides stove, fuel and light.

Young men desiring private study rooms at the Seminary, can be accommodated by paying a small extra.

Though students will be received at any time during the term and charged only from the time they enter, provided they continue one quarter or more, yet it is of the utmost importance that they should enter at the opening of the term.

FREELAND SEMINARY.

A different course is frequently subversive of salutary discipline and injurious to the pupil.

The contraction of debts by the students is strictly forbidden.

~~It is~~ It is desirable that each pupil, on entering, should have all his clothes marked with his name in full. He should also have slippers, an umbrella, towels and basin.
